From the marks of number of unsuccessful candidates in Pre (Those who were serious in their attempts) ,it has become clear that either they have lost it by a thin margin or the CSAT paper 2 is the culprit.Those who are going to appear again this should not be a demoralizing moment but a wake up call.Take the lesson and rectify your mistake.Solve paper 2

mocks. Attempt previous year papers and take GS paper 1 mock in exam condition. Do not do anything that you won't do in the real exam. This is the time to buckle up. No time to regret for the year that has already gone.

For those having considerable gap in their marks and the cutoff, this is the time to revise your basics. Stick to three four books and revise again and again. When there is wide gap, it is not because the paper was tough. It is because of those silly mistakes in static questions which should have been correct. In some questions you must have rushed to mark the answer or not read the question properly. Whatever may be the reason just remember that you have it and you can do it. Be patient. Read the questions. Give it the attention it needs but do not overthink. Again practice mocks and do not ignore paper 2.
